

ABSTRACT

Technology website is now easier for users who want to obtain good information and with attractive appearance. So users in the internet world does not feel bored when reading information on get it.

Writing a program that is used by the author is CodeLobster who use the programming language PHP, Javascript and HTML5 useful to provide comfort in using the system later. The accommodation process used by the author in bringing together job information to the job seekers is to use simple logic designed by the PHP programming language. To issue the author chose the user interface as a bootstrap framework attempt to show good websites at once more familiar with the features responsive (adjust the size of the gadget users). How to test this system running smoothly for themselves whether or not the authors specify the web browser Google Chrome and Mozilla Firefox. Data storage is created in the system itself by using a MySQL database.

Keywords: Jobseeker, Employee, Vacancies, Internet, Website.